

Who supports TCFD-aligned disclosure?

Since 2017, organizations have been able to voluntarily support the the Task Force of Climate Related Financial Disclosures (TCFD). A supporter believes the TCFD recommendations provide a useful framework to increase transparency on climate-related risks and opportunities within financial markets.

These organizations will demonstrate their support by voluntarily reports on their climate risk in April 2022. Cervest has analyzed the data surrounding the TCFD supporters to share important insights.

What are the TCFD recommendations?

Download our ebook for an overview of TCFD guidelines and how to navigate climate-related financial risk disclosure for your business.

Growing support for the TCFD

Supporters by location

- 41% Asia Pacific, the biggest regional supporter
- 32% Europe
- 7% Global
- 3% Latin America
- 2% Middle East & Africa
- 15% North America

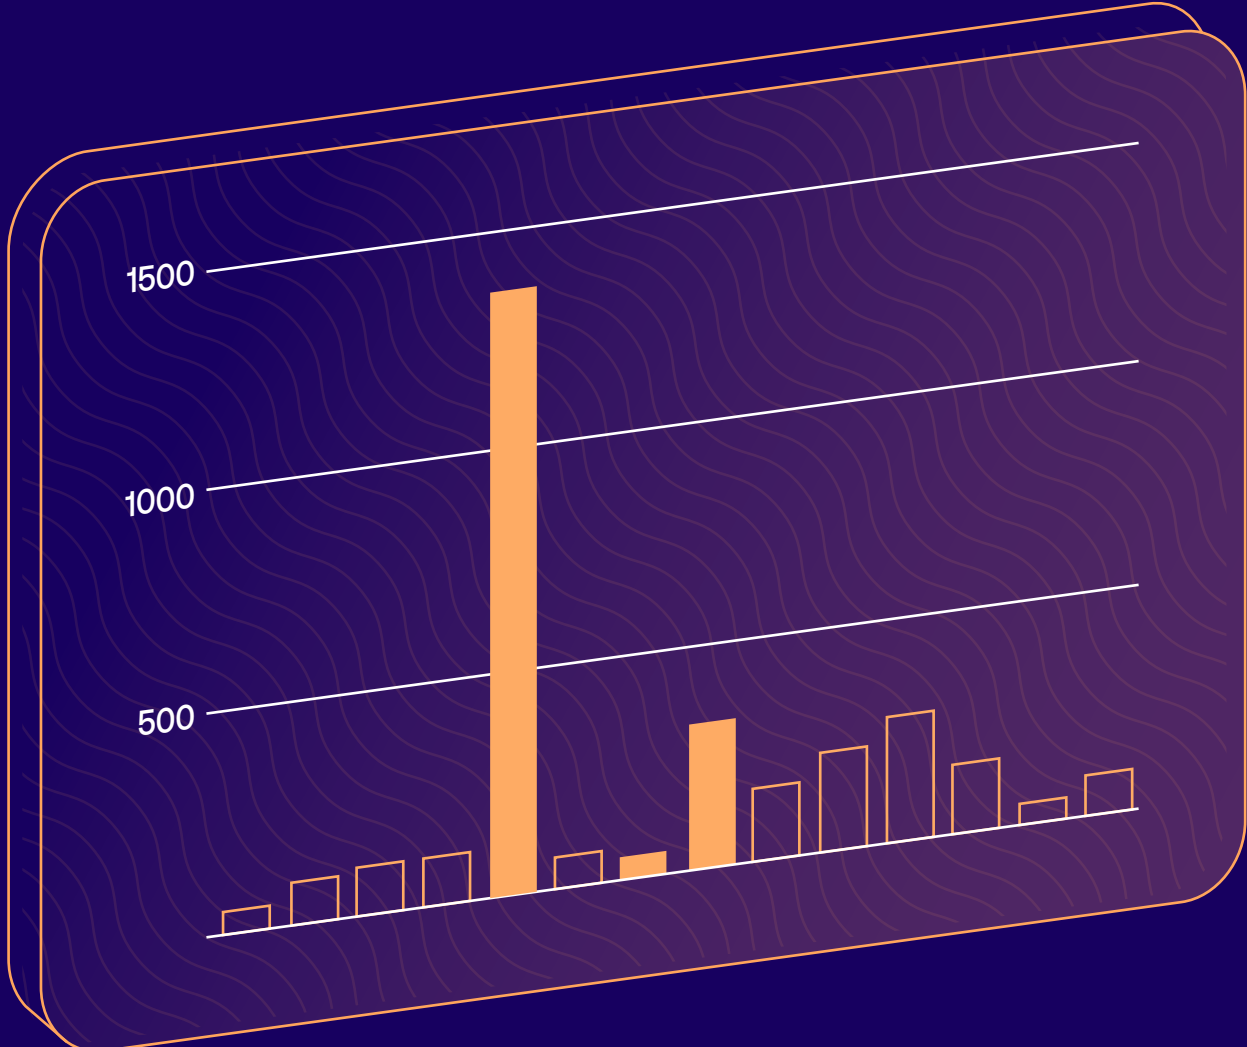

April 6th, 2023

Organizations in the public sector and those with a high turnover (over 500million) are among the first to face mandatory disclosure regulations.

Supporters by sector

- Finance companies make up the majority 44.5%
- Industrials is the second biggest sector 10%
- Healthcare is the smallest sector 15%

Voluntarily reporting in April 2022?

Want to improve your reporting with science-backed Climate Intelligence on your assets? Download our ebook to discover how you can improve or validate your existing reporting with on-demand insights across multiple scenarios and time periods.

Download now