EMPOWERING YOUNG LEADERS.

Dinner & Networking with Industry Guests

When: Monday, February 1, 2027, 6:30-8:00 p.m. CST

Where: Sumitomo Biorational Company | 1900 Innovation Way Ste | Libertyville, IL 60048

What: This dinner provides an opportunity for professionals in the agriculture sustainability industry to network with students, alumni, and peers in a formal setting. The event aims to build professional relationships and foster meaningful connections within the industry.

How: Student delegates will be preassigned to seats, while industry professionals may choose where to sit. The dinner encourages open, professional conversations about careers, industry insights, and shared experiences in agriculture sustainability.

Why: The objective is to strengthen professional relationships by creating a space for networking between students, professionals, alumni, and peers in the agriculture sustainability industry. Through these interactions, participants can establish valuable connections that may enhance future career opportunities.

Your Role: As an industry professional, you will share your career experiences and insights with students and alumni, fostering meaningful discussions on sustainability and helping build professional networks that benefit the next generation of agricultural leaders.

For more information, visit AFA Sustainability Institute or contact:

Taylor Howell, AFA Program Manager at taylor.howell@agfuture.org or

Lexy Mullins, AFA Development Coordinator at lexy.mullins@agfuture.org