2010 Leaders Conference
AGRICULTURE FUTURE OF AMERICA

AFA exists to be a catalyst in the preparation of a new generation of agriculture leaders.

Our Voice. Our Vision.

Today's college men and women are a generation of collaborators. Technology, social media and a return to service-minded philosophies are contributions this generation will leave to our communities and our industry. We seek to define the future of the agriculture and food industry collaboratively. This spirit of synergy is the mechanism that brings a solution better than what an individual could provide and that all can be proud of and stand behind.

“Our Voice. Our Vision.” is both individual and collective, but unified in its purpose.

Agriculture Future of America (AFA) Leaders Conference delegates have a passion and commitment for their roles in the agriculture and food industry. Through discussion and collaboration amongst a common network, their voices and visions for the future coalesce to drive our industry forward.

AFA Leaders Conference convenes the future leaders of our industry to engage in dialogue about issues of today, providing tools and information for success and building a collaborative network to make a stronger, more unified industry. Each individual has an opportunity and a challenge to extend the common vision and voice of the AFA Leaders Conference experience, as well as the knowledge and perspective gained, to those they serve.

“Our Voice. Our Vision.” is a description of how industry can choose to react to current situations. It calls on the senses to effectively interact and relate to our consumers' needs more readily. It is a description of the approach AFA delegates will take to define their individual and collective career contributions.

Welcome to AFA Leaders Conference

Agriculture needs strong people; people with passion and talent, who believe in themselves; and who are committed to making a difference by embracing challenges and finding solutions to complex issues of the 21st century.

Agriculture Future of America is an organization committed to creating partnerships with community leaders, business and corporate representatives and educators from colleges and universities that identify the men and women who will be our leaders. AFA serves as a catalyst in the preparation of the next generation of agricultural leaders. This Leaders Conference is one way AFA contributes to this preparation.

To attend Leaders Conference and read this welcome means you have been judged by others as a person of merit. You are an individual with a record of noted achievements, but more importantly, you have been judged as a person of high potential. You have been identified as a leader among leaders in the profession known as agriculture. Regardless of your career choice, whether it be production, processing, marketing, communication, research or any number of others, your opportunities are limitless and the expectations are great.

AFA Leaders Conference is designed to provide each attendee with an individual experience. The saying "you get out of it what you put into it" applies here. In this forum, you are in a peer group that is expected to lead change. The theme for the 2010 Leaders Conference, "Our Voice. Our Vision." clearly states this expectation; you have the option to define its meaning for yourself. It is truly up to you. If you embrace the experience to its fullest, you will be rewarded with stronger skills, a clearer vision for your future and a new appreciation for the career you have chosen.

I encourage you to fully embrace this opportunity; regardless of your career path, you will be exposed to people and ideas that can strengthen your skills and expand your vision for the future.

It is my pleasure, on behalf of AFA's Board of Directors, professional staff, Student Advisory Team and our partner organizations, to welcome you to AFA Leaders Conference. I look forward to meeting each of you and learning with you.

AFA Student Advisory Team

This team of collegiate men and women serve as ambassadors for the AFA vision and mission. They are responsible for being the voice of the AFA-student stakeholder, and for preparing a program that expands a student's academic, leadership and work experiences.

The team is annually selected through an application and interview process. Selection is based on AFA involvement, geographic representation, interest in agriculture, and leadership on campus and in the community.

During their one-year term, members of the Student Advisory Team strengthen leader and team skills, receive media and communications training, interact with corporate and association leaders and are exposed to career opportunities. Each member receives an academic scholarship for their service to the Student Advisory Team.

Members of the team are actively involved on their campuses and have participated in summer internships. The 2010 AFA Student Advisory Team includes (top to bottom, left to right):

Brett Monson	South Dakota State University	SDSU Students' Association

AFA Opportunity Fair

Agriculture Future of America links college students to opportunities for career development in business, production, education, sciences and technology.

The AFA Opportunity Fair is a recruiting event designed to give participating organizations a competitive edge in the identification of human capital. AFA continues to be a resource for both students and employers year-round, reviewing resumes and linking them together based on individual interests.

For more than 10 years, Pioneer Hi-Bred, a DuPont business, has been a supporter of AFA. We believe the organization truly makes a positive difference in the lives of young people by developing their potential for leadership, personal growth and career success. The AFA Leaders Conference brings together the brightest, most talented individuals in agriculture who have a passion to be successful, drive to make a difference and become leaders of our industry. Being involved with this conference affords Pioneer the opportunity to encourage students to consider joining our efforts to meet the world's increasing demand for food, feed, fuel and materials.

Jill Rutz

Talent Acquisition & Diversity Consultant
Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

During the AFA Opportunity Fair, students learn about available internships, full-time and employment opportunities, as well as graduate school and international study programs. All of these opportunities help AFA students create a stronger personal and professional portfolio. Company recruiters are eager to share their definition of agriculture and to explore ways for you to become an intern or full-time employee.

AFA Leaders Conference

We share a passion and dedication for our industry. Identified as leaders on campus, in organizations and in the community, we are here to prepare as a new generation of young professionals in the agriculture industry. We are the future, the driving force behind the change that will define agriculture. Through this conference, we will be challenged to lead this great industry.

AFA believes the future leadership of agriculture cannot be left to chance. The evolving business and production structure, influenced by science, technology, globalization and consolidation, will require future leaders to have excellent business skills, international understanding and leadership qualities.

Leaders Conference is a key component of AFA's leader and career development training program. This forum provides AFA students an opportunity to develop key competencies to enhance their marketable skills. Agricultural businesses, organizations, associations, institutions and individuals invest in this program as a means to develop Human Capital for our industry.

At AFA Leaders Conference, students participate in one of the three program tracks with the following emphases:

- Track 1 – Personal assessment and career preparation
- Track 2 – Communication and relationship-building skills
- Track 3 – Managing change and preparing to live and work in a global marketplace

What will you take away from this experience? A new network of lifelong contacts and friends? New knowledge and skills?

Remember: What you get out of this experience is determined by what you put into it.

It Starts with a Vision.

R. Crosby Kemper
Senior Chairman of the Board UMB Financial Corporation
Founder and Chairman Emeritus, AFA

R. Crosby Kemper's vision of an organization that identifies rural college men and women who are passionate about agriculture and aspire to be leaders took root in the fall and winter of 1996-97. Mr. Kemper, with his son Alexander 'Sandy' Kemper, founded Agriculture Future of America to provide rural youths with academic scholarships, personal and professional training and career development experiences. The goal was to provide some of the best and brightest young people an advantage with their education and career preparation.

Since 1997, AFA has awarded in excess of five million dollars in academic scholarships and nearly 6,000 men and women have participated in AFA leader and career development experiences.

Thank you Mr. Kemper; for your vision, your leadership and financial investment in America's future leaders.

“To educate, motivate, and develop networks among young college men and women.”

The Track 1 program of AFA Leaders Conference is designed to create awareness of an individual's potential while developing a broad base of personal and professional skills. The program focuses on essential career skills and pathways, lifestyles and recognition of possibilities.

Expect to participate in programs on time management, resume development, how to live an entrepreneurial life, making the most of future internships and how to dine in style.

To our presenters, we appreciate all you do to help make our generation of leaders a cut above the rest.

“Our Voice. Our Vision: Catalysts for Change.”

The Track 3 program is focused on the final steps in preparing young men and women for careers in agriculture as the agriculture industry becomes more of a global marketplace. This program is focused on working with young individuals to help them be successful in this ever-changing industry. Track 3 focuses on helping individuals understand the importance of the changes in our industry. In this track, delegates get the opportunity to share their voice and vision while interacting with top industry professionals to discuss the issues that are facing agriculture.

By using your voice and sharing your vision, you can expect to share your thoughts and experiences in this track. It is a great opportunity to network with your peers as well as industry professionals.

As the agriculture industry becomes more of a global marketplace, it is essential to be a catalyst for change. Track 3 is focused on the final steps in preparing you for life after college and a successful career in agriculture by building on what you may have learned in Tracks 1 and 2. You will have the opportunity to network with your peers and top industry professionals and share your voice and vision about the current issues facing agriculture.

The AFA Alliance

The Alliance is a personal and professional organization for men and women in the beginning years of their careers. The Alliance is sponsored by Agriculture Future of America (AFA) and began as an outgrowth of AFA's collegiate program.

Alliance members believe that agriculture is an exciting and dynamic industry and want to be part of a national network of professionals prepared for roles of leadership in their respective organizations and communities.

The Alliance web site at www.afaalliance.com links you to the AgriNetwork. You can become an Alliance member for $50 annually.

Member Benefits include:

- ▶ Log-in to the Alliance virtual AgriNetwork
- ▶ Discounted rate to attend annual AFA Alliance Forum
- ▶ Professional development (forum, webinars, etc.)
- ▶ Lifelong professional network
- ▶ Monthly e-newsletter

Alliance Giving Back

The AFA Alliance annually sponsors two future leaders in agriculture to participate in the Leaders Conference. This sponsorship is funded through the Brian Perry Leader Conference fund. The recipients of the 2010 Brian Perry Sponsorship are:

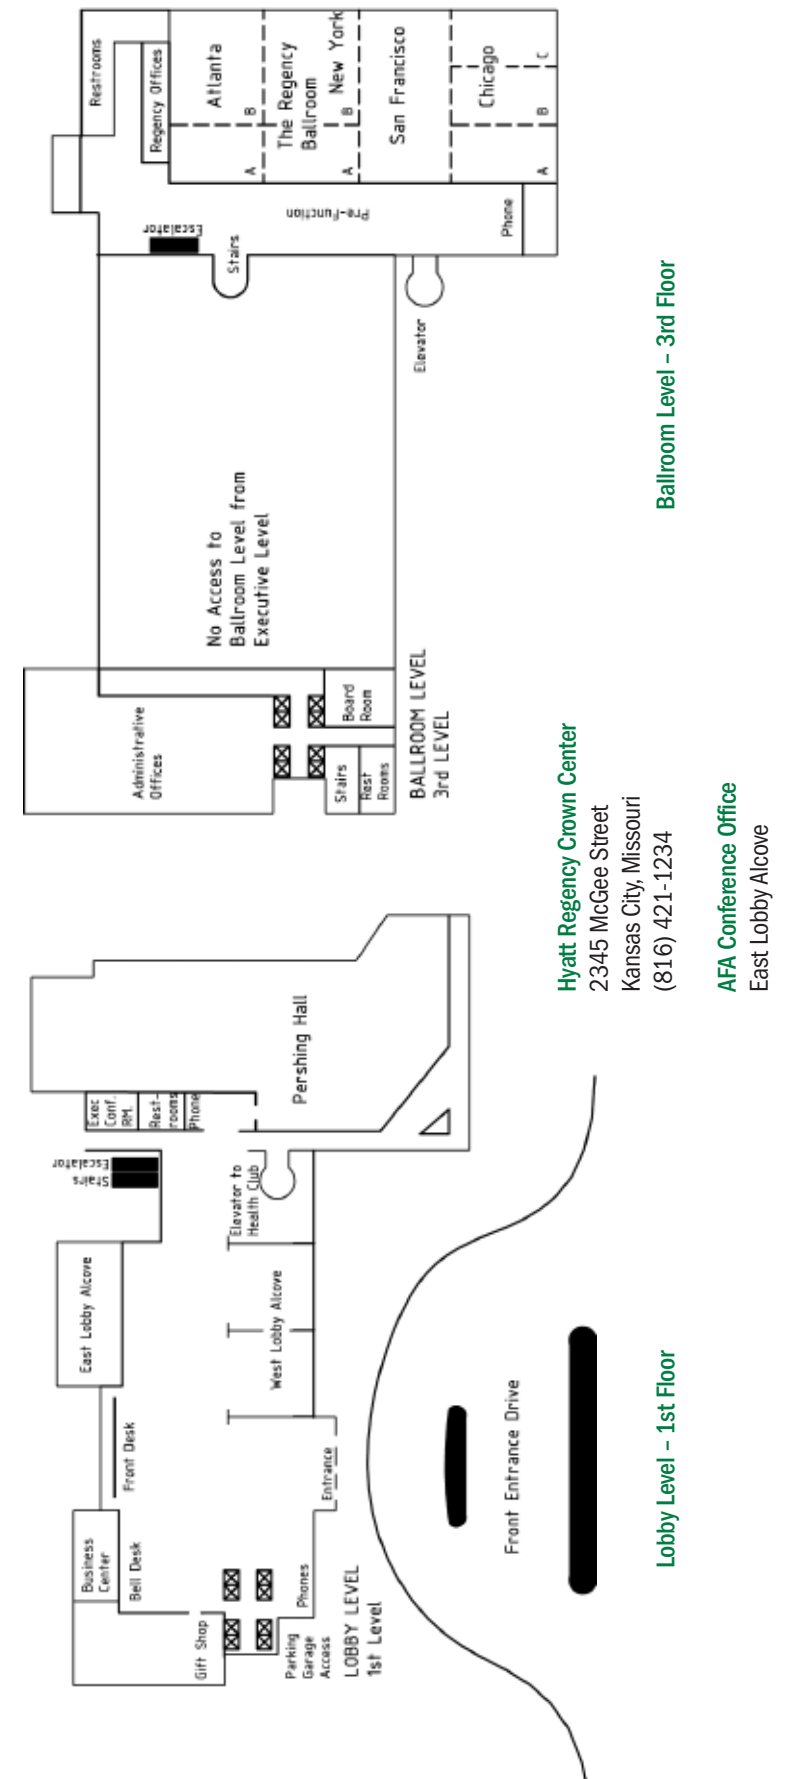

Allyson Ladd
