Unlike on-campus experiences and sector-specific opportunities, AFA programs connect you to a more diverse community of peers and professionals who share a passion for food, agriculture and natural resources. Attending an AFA Leader Institute will challenge the way you think about yourself, your career and the industry.

“To witness cunning developments in agricultural production and interact with high-caliber students is refreshing, and a reminder of the value of AFA programs in my life the past three years while a student at Iowa State University.”

Will Feucht
Iowa State University

Apply today to be competitively selected to join an intimate group, explore careers in agriculture and food sectors that interest you, network with industry leaders and find your place in agriculture.
