Blue Collar Outsourcing

Field Service. Logistics. Assembly.

Your processes. Our responsibility.

Less coordination. Clearly defined services. More focus on your core business.

Goods need to be dispatched on schedule, components assembled accurately and technical services delivered reliably. Yet fluctuating order volumes and skilled labour shortages make daily operations increasingly demanding. With Blue Collar Outsourcing, Trenkwalder takes over clearly defined operational areas in field service, logistics and assembly through a tailored works or services contract.

We organise the teams, manage the processes and take responsibility for the agreed delivery. This includes team leadership, deployment planning and quality assurance.

You reduce the pressure on your internal teams while maintaining visibility over performance and costs.

Benefits at a glance

- Less day-to-day management
- Capacity aligned with demand
- Transparent performance & costs
- Measurable quality
- Less recruitment effort
- Focus on your core business

Your benefits in detail

Less operational management
Our own supervisors handle team leadership, deployment planning and daily coordination.

Capacity aligned with demand
Teams and shifts planned around order volumes, project phases and current requirements.

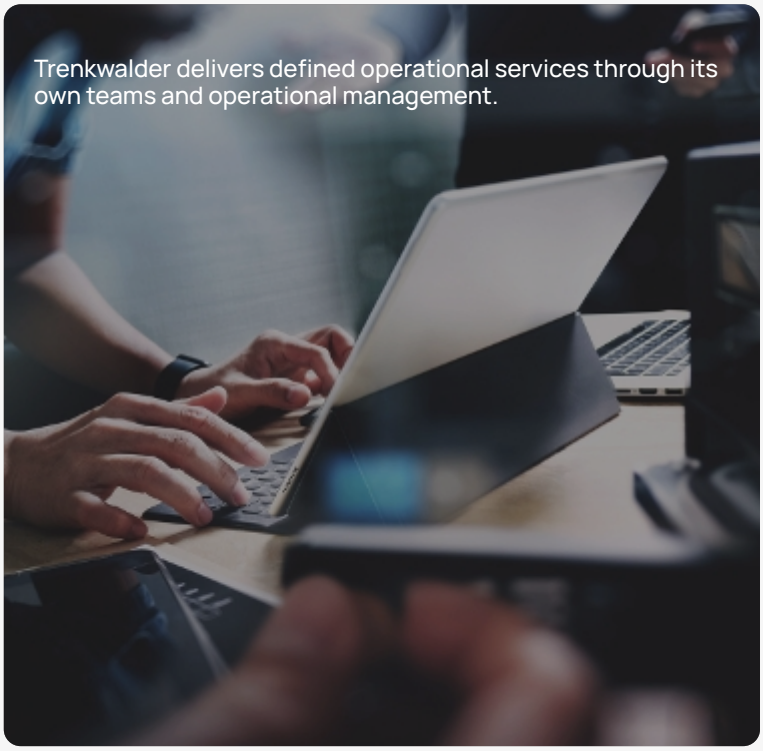

Transparent performance and costs
Defined services and agreed billing per unit of output provide a clearer basis for planning.

Measurable quality
Agreed standards, documented checks and regular reviews provide visibility into results.

Less workforce administration
We organise recruitment, onboarding and replacements within our scope of responsibility.

Focus on your core business
Your internal resources remain available for products, customers and business development.

Trenkwalder delivers defined operational services through its own teams and operational management.

For different industries and requirements

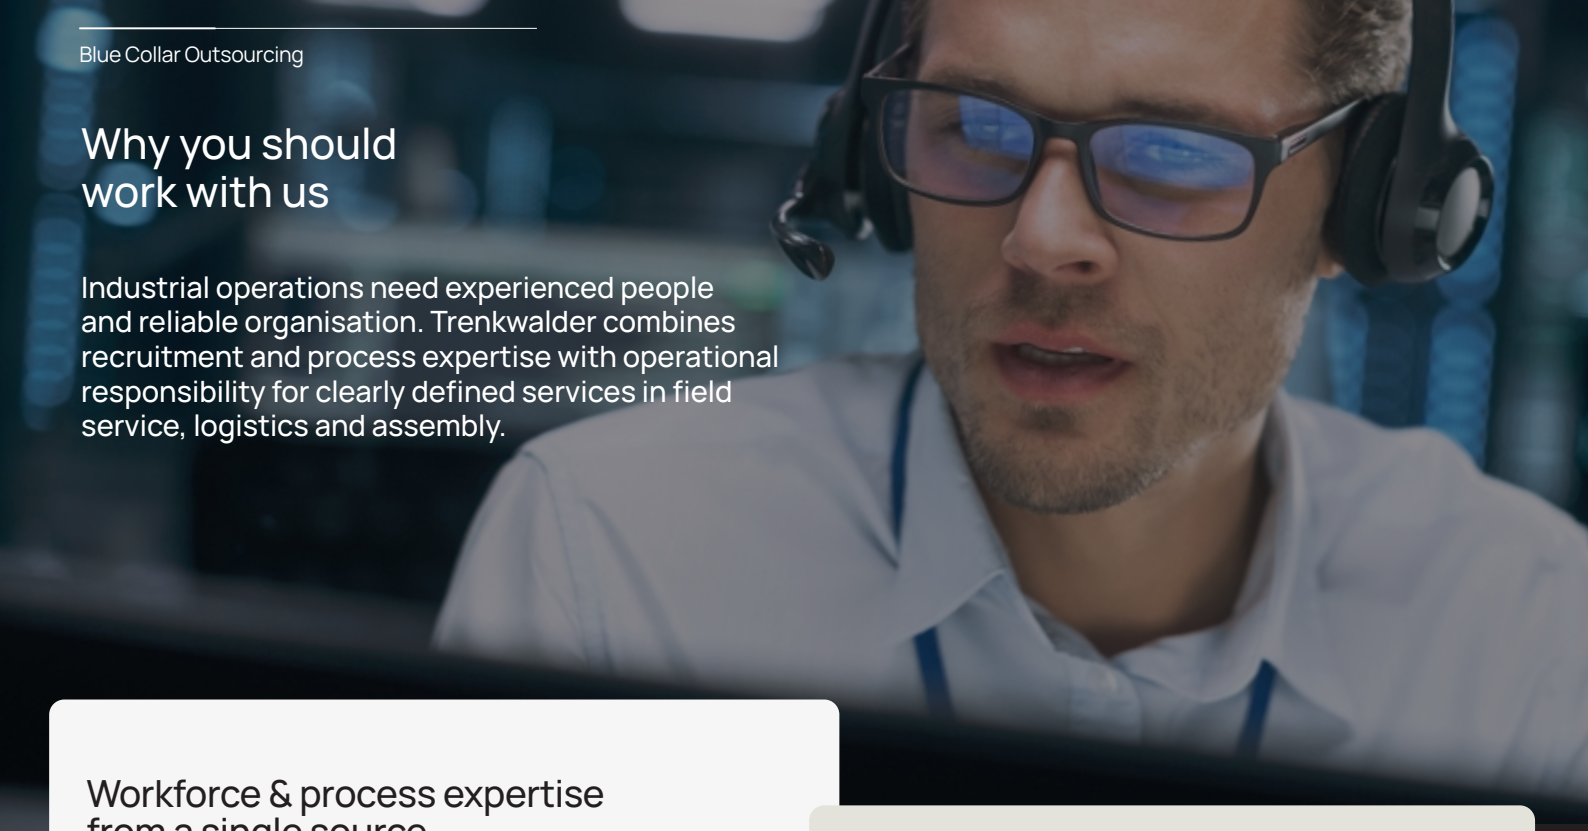

Our Blue Collar Outsourcing solutions support companies with manual or technical operations in areas such as:

- Industry and manufacturing
- Logistics and warehousing
- Mechanical and plant engineering
- Retail and distribution
- Energy and infrastructure
- Technical services

We consider the entire operational scope, from the skills required and shift patterns to handovers with your internal teams. The result is a solution that fits your business.

Why you should work with us

Industrial operations need experienced people and reliable organisation. Trenkwalder combines recruitment and process expertise with operational responsibility for clearly defined services in field service, logistics and assembly.

Workforce & process expertise from a single source

We bring together the right teams and the organisation of their work. From recruitment to daily delivery, we design the solution around your tasks and processes.

Our own operational leadership

Our supervisors lead the assigned teams and coordinate shifts and workflows within the agreed scope. Clear points of contact reduce the coordination workload for your managers.

Recruitment with technology and expertise

AI-assisted processes help us find suitable employees and build teams around your needs. Our recruitment experts remain responsible for selection and assignment decisions.

Designed around your processes

Together, we define the scope, handover points and communication channels. The outsourcing model is aligned with your existing workflows and operational requirements.

Clear deliverables & transparent costs

We agree the scope of services, quality criteria and billing units before launch. Regular reviews show what is being delivered and where adjustments would be useful.

Continuous improvement through partnership

Requirements change. We review workflows and results together with you and adapt the solution to changing volumes, tasks and operating conditions.
