WANT 800 M² TO PLAY WITH?

We're looking for an intern who wants to work with people, places and ideas – and help turn possibilities into something real.

Your main playground will be Bøgebladet in Munkebo, Kolding – approximately 800 m² of space entering a new chapter.

Parts of the building can become studios, workshops, meeting spaces and temporary homes for creative projects. Other parts are still completely open.

We don't have a finished plan for what Bøgebladet should become.

And that is exactly why we need you.

We want to develop the place by using it, testing ideas and inviting people in – together with residents, local organisations, creatives, students and new partners.

WHAT COULD YOU BE DOING?

This is not an internship where your tasks have been planned six months in advance.

You'll become part of the development of Bøgebladet and other projects in Munkebo. What you work on will depend partly on what is happening – and partly on what you bring to the table.

You might:

- help organise an exhibition, workshop or creative event
- find and contact new people who could use Bøgebladet
- involve local residents and explore their ideas for the building and neighbourhood
- develop and test new concepts for spaces, activities and communities
- bring people together and help create new collaborations
- take an idea of your own and see if we can make it happen

One week you might be contacting people who could use a workspace. The next you could be setting up an exhibition, facilitating a workshop with residents or developing an idea for a completely different project somewhere in Munkebo.

WHO ARE WE LOOKING FOR?

Your educational background is not the most important thing to us. Your skills, curiosity and ability to work with people are.

You might be studying design, art, humanities or anthropology, for example – but we are open to other backgrounds too.

We are looking for someone who can use their imagination, take initiative and collaborate with different kinds of people. Someone who sees possibilities, asks questions and isn't afraid to reach out to someone new or try an idea out in practice.

You don't need to arrive with all the answers. But you should be curious enough to go looking for them.

You can be Danish- or English-speaking. We welcome both Danish and international students, and you do not need to speak Danish to apply.

WHY BØGEBLADET?

Because it is unfinished.

Bøgebladet gives us something unusual: 800 m² where we can experiment before deciding exactly what the place should become.

It can become a place where people from the neighbourhood meet people from outside it. Where an artist can work next door to a local initiative. Where students can test an idea. Where something can exist for two weeks just to see what happens.

And Bøgebladet won't necessarily be your only project. ALFABO is working with urban development, communities, public spaces, culture, health and new partnerships across Munkebo, and you may become involved in other projects along the way.

You will work closely with ALFABO, but also with residents, creatives, organisations, municipal partners, educational institutions and others.

There will be guidance and people to work with – but also room for you to say:

"What if we tried this?"

And then actually try it.

INTERESTED?

If you like working somewhere between people, ideas and action, we would like to hear from you.
