Vertex Holdings

Overview

Vertex Holdings is a Singapore-based venture capital investment holding company. It is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Temasek.

Vertex Holdings provides anchor funding and operational support to our proprietary global network of venture capital funds. This network of funds comprises:

- Vertex Ventures China, focused on early-stage technology opportunities in China
- Vertex Ventures Israel, focused on early-stage technology opportunities in Israel
- Vertex Ventures Japan, focused on early-stage technology opportunities in Japan
- Vertex Ventures Southeast Asia & India, focused on early-stage technology opportunities across Southeast Asia and India
- Vertex Ventures US, focused on early-stage technology opportunities in US
- Vertex Ventures HC, focused on early-stage technology global opportunities in the biotech and medtech sectors
- Vertex Growth, focused on growth-stage global and follow-on opportunities from the early-stage network partnerships across both technology and healthcare sectors

These Vertex funds are managed by independent and separate General Partnerships and investment teams. Together, our network has over 100 VC professionals, all highly experienced with deep knowledge and strong networks in their respective target geographies and sectors.

This global-local structure has allowed Vertex to source for the most transformational and promising technologies and companies to nurture them into global champions. Each team shares domain expertise, investment ideas, lessons learnt and best practices. The collective knowledge-base, as well as investor and corporate networks built up over the years represent a unique advantage that is hard to replicate.

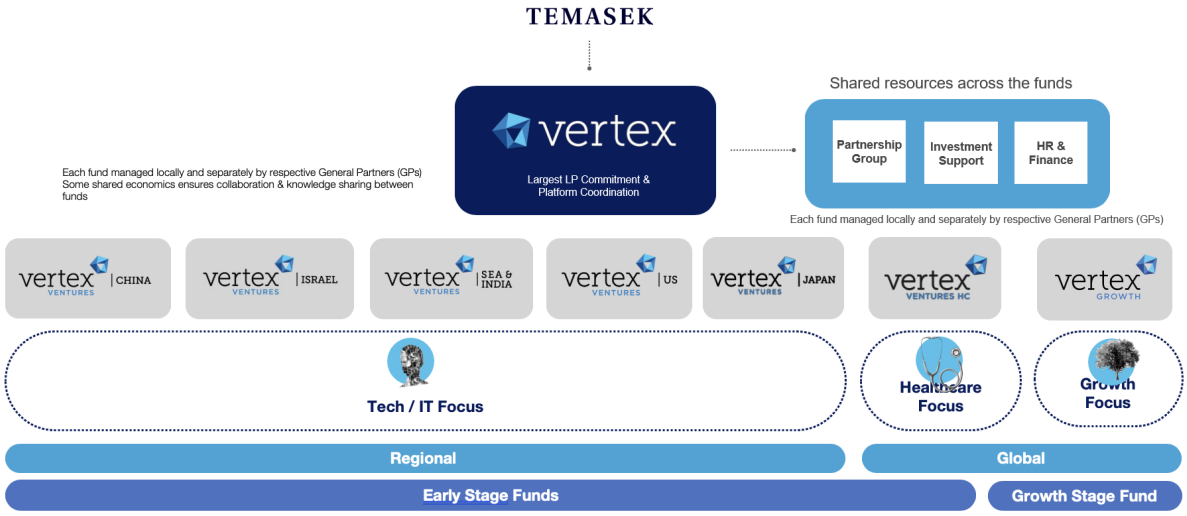

Last updated: 26 May 2024

Vertex's Global Network

Vertex Holdings is a Singapore-based venture capital investment holding company and a wholly-owned subsidiary of Temasek. It provides anchor funding and operational support to a proprietary global network of venture capital funds.

The Vertex family of funds invests in early-stage technology opportunities through Vertex Ventures, early-stage healthcare opportunities through Vertex Ventures HC, and growth-stage opportunities through Vertex Growth. Each Vertex fund operates independently, with separate local teams that raise and manage their respective funds.

Overview of Vertex's Global Network Architecture

While Vertex Holdings provides anchor funding and operational support, the Network Partnerships function autonomously and are not subsidiaries of Vertex Holdings. They belong to a global network of venture capital funds.

Last updated: 26 May 2024

Common FAQs

What is the association between Vertex Holdings and Temasek?

Vertex Holdings is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Temasek. Temasek describes itself as a global investment company headquartered in Singapore and not as a Sovereign Wealth Fund or government-backed fund.

For further information about Temasek, please visit their official website.

How does Vertex's global network benefit portfolio companies?

Vertex's global network of venture capital funds allows portfolio companies to access deep local knowledge and platform resources. Each fund operates independently, with separate local teams that manage and raise their respective funds.

The General Partners (GPs) and team share industry insights within the network and are available to provide market-specific expertise.

How does Vertex support startups throughout their lifecycle?

Vertex is a trusted long-term partner providing value creation beyond capital. By offering comprehensive value-creation opportunities, including ongoing support in business development, funding, and partnerships, Vertex aims to nurture and propel the growth of startups.

What is the relationship between Vertex Holdings and the Vertex network partnerships?

Vertex Holdings is the anchor investor in our Vertex family of funds. Each of the Vertex network partnerships operates independently with separate General Partners who raise and manage their respective funds.

Last updated: 26 May 2024

The Vertex network funds focus on investing in early-stage technology opportunities through Vertex Ventures, early-stage healthcare opportunities through Vertex Ventures HC, and growth-stage opportunities through Vertex Growth.

While Vertex Holdings provides anchor funding and operational support, the Network Partnerships function autonomously and are not subsidiaries of Vertex Holdings. They belong to a global network of venture capital funds.

What is the relationship between Vertex Holdings and the Vertex Exploratory Fund?

Vertex Exploratory Fund is a captive fund under Vertex Holdings that invests in early-stage, disruptive frontier technologies. Investments made under this fund should be attributed to the Vertex Exploratory Fund and not directly to Vertex Holdings.

Last updated: 26 May 2024