MARBLE EXPERTS

Marble reconciles the beauty of nature with a rich range of colours and an intriguing play of lines and structures.

Brachot began as a wholesaler of marble slabs in 1901. Over the years, we have grown into a true specialist in natural stone, with very strong expertise in marble. Even now, our specialists search for the best marbles in Europe and far beyond every day. Always with an eye for quality, but also for the trends in colours and applications. At the same time, we continue to innovate. Both in terms of processing – we saw blocks into slabs and tiles – and finishing, with increasing numbers of new surface structures.

Marble is a natural stone, meaning that geological processes have 'sculpted' this material for centuries. This makes each slab different and unique. The intriguing play of colours and veining is one of marble's biggest assets.

As well as being aesthetic, marble is also a particularly durable material, in the broadest sense of the word. It has an exceptional lifespan and is also extremely environmentally friendly. Marble is only formed by nature, so no energy is required for its production. CO2 emissions during production are also considerably lower. And because it is 100% recyclable, marble can be reused for a wide range of applications.

Choose an aesthetic look with class

The Sacré-Cœur, the Taj Mahal, Michelangelo's David,...: they were all carved from marble hundreds of years ago. This aesthetic, durable natural stone has become a permanent fixture and has many applications today, as flooring material, wall cladding, kitchen worktop, ornaments or used for stairs and fireplaces.

What typifies marble above all is the enormous variety of colours, veining, and patterns. Each slab, each tile is unique, surprising and authentic. Choosing marble is choosing pure beauty, class, and an unadulterated eye-catcher in your home.

Marble also suits every interior style. The fact that this ancient material is also offered in various sizes, countless colour variations, standard thicknesses of 2 or 3 cm (and up to 20 cm on request) and a broad range of possible surface finishes, ensures a personal touch.

A selection of our finishes

The finishes presented here are a selection from the possible finishes for marble. We at Brachot are constantly looking for ways to optimise these finishes and develop new ones, which ensures that we can find the finish best suited to the material, your tastes and the style of your home.

Sablino

A combination of various treatments gives the marble a coarse and finely grained effect.

Polished

Without a doubt, the glossiest and smoothest finish, highlighting the colours and veining.

Brosso Vecchio

This special matt finish has been developed specifically for marbles. The surface is gently brushed, giving it a 'leather feel' and accentuating its natural colour.

Sensato

Thanks to this mechanical treatment, the marble has a slightly coarse yet matt appearance, which is satisfying to the touch.

More beautiful over time...

Silver River

Marble has been used for centuries in various projects, such as kitchen worktops, fireplaces, stairs, flooring and ornamentals. Often because of its aesthetic properties, but also on account of its compact structure and limited porosity, which make marble highly resistant to stains, heat, and wear and tear.

Marble also acquires a natural patina over time. It gets more beautiful as time goes on. With the right maintenance products, you can also improve the scratch and acid resistance of your marble. This material is naturally stain and heat-resistant.
