BIM Management Challenges: Navigating Increasingly Complex Workflows

As Revit and other design tools become increasingly complex, Drewett Works faced growing demands on time and resources, as well as mounting pressure to maintain efficiency and adaptability. For a small architectural firm, securing a dedicated BIM manager was difficult, leaving the team without the specialized expertise needed to streamline workflows. The firm needed a partnership that would provide ongoing training and support, increase efficiency, and free up internal resources to focus on what matters most: delivering exceptional design.

“Working with ARKANCE has allowed us to build what we need without worrying about replacements or maintenance. They’ve taken that responsibility and continue to provide the support our firm needs for years to come.”
