Intellectual property

The Tandberg Data brand, product names, logos, patents, software, visuals, technical documentation and other elements belonging to Tandberg Data remain the property of Tandberg Data Norge A.S. or their respective owners. Their presence on the sites does not transfer any property rights to users.

The editorial texts, page structure, selections, presentations, guides and other original content produced by ELECTRONIC PARTS eParts belong to it, unless otherwise stated. Any unauthorized reproduction, representation, adaptation or exploitation of all or part of these elements is prohibited, subject to the exceptions provided for by law.

RDX product information and configurator

The information, compatibilities and recommendations published are provided as an aid to choice. The RDX configurator produces an estimate based on the responses entered; it constitutes neither an automated decision producing legal effect, nor a guarantee of suitability for all technical environments. For a complex configuration, project validation may be requested before purchase.

Liability

ELECTRONIC PARTS eParts strives to maintain accurate and up-to-date information. Errors, omissions or temporary unavailability may nevertheless occur. Users remain responsible for verifying that a solution is suitable for their environment, software, security constraints and backup or restoration objectives.

Links to third party sites are provided for ease of navigation. ELECTRONIC PARTS eParts does not control their content or their practices.
