How scholarship decisions are made

The TIAS admissions board considers your complete application. This includes your academic and professional background, the strength of your application, your admissions interview, employability and your potential contribution to an international classroom.

Test scores are considered in context. A high GMAT, GRE or TIAS Capacity Test score does not guarantee an award, and a lower score does not automatically exclude you when other parts of your profile are strong. International experience gained through work, study or living abroad may also strengthen your application.

Living expenses

The cost of living in the Netherlands varies depending on your lifestyle and personal spending. Estimated living costs for international students, including accommodation, insurance, and general day-to-day expenses, are approximately €1,300 - €1,500 per person per month. For more information on living expenses and immigration, please visit our housing and immigration guide.

External financing

Admitted candidates may explore external loan providers such as Lendwise. Eligibility and availability are determined by the lender and can change by intake. TIAS does not influence lending decisions.
