

Dear Principal,

Something special is happening at your school this year. It's called WE Schools, and it will transform the way your students view their place in the world. While most organizations see young people as problems to be solved, we see young people as problem-solvers.

WE Schools encourages young people to challenge apathy by awakening their spirit of volunteerism. It inspires students to identify the issues that spark their passion and empowers them with the skills and tools to take action. The unique service-learning program provides curriculum, educational resources and a full calendar of campaign ideas that bring local and global issues into the classroom.

Three Key Learning Outcomes

1.

Increased academic engagement

2.

Improved university and workplace readiness

3.

A commitment to active citizenship

After Participating in WE Schools

Third-party studies of the program show that WE Schools participants feel empowered and equipped to lead at school, in their communities and in their future careers.

89%

of students in WE Schools feel a greater sense of connection to their local community

83%

of educators say they are better equipped to teach about social justice issues through service-based learning

Get Involved

We're counting on educators to guide the next generation of compassionate leaders. To ensure teachers at your school feel supported, you'll want to reach out to them and find out how you can help them run the program successfully throughout the year. It's also a good idea to share details about the program with your Parent Council so that everyone feels empowered to change the world together. Learn more about our organization or the amazing things your students are doing through WE Schools at WE.org/weschools.